PROCESSING AND EXPLOITATION RESPONSIBILITIES (U)

1. (U) Purpose. Establish command relationships, organizations, and support responsibilities for processing and exploitation activities/ units and to reduce to a minimum the opportunity for duplicative processing, exploitation and dissemination to exist within PACOM.

2. (U) Definitions. The following definitions establish the PACOM base for phases of imagery processing and exploitation and are in consonance with the national level definitions contained in references (g) and (j).

a. (U) First Phase Processing. Original negative precision processing and the initial duplication of imagery required to perform first phase exploitation of photographic reconnaissance missions. Includes time-sensitive conventional lab processing of prints, viewgraphs, and chips identified as a direct result of first phase exploitation.

b. (U) Second Phase Processing. Precision duplication of reconnaissance mission imagery and distribution as outlined in the appropriate program instructions. This includes time-sensitive conventional lab processing of prints, viewgraphs, and chips identified as a direct result of second phase exploitation.

c. (U) Third Phase Processing. Conventional lab processing of selected mission imagery in response to special or third phase imagery exploitation requirements. Includes preparation of prints, viewgraphs, slides, mosaics, and other special interest briefing or support photographic materials.

4. (U) Other Theater Exploitation Organizations

a. (U) Additional PACOM exploitation units are located as listed below and are primarily tasked with tactical exploitation responsibilities. In those cases where there exists an exception to tactical exploitation tasking, the type of tasking is addressed separately.
